GLENDALE CHAMBER ANNOUNCES ENDORSEMENTS FOR CITY COUNCIL ELECTION

The Glendale Chamber of Commerce is endorsing three candidates for the upcoming City Council Election.

The Glendale Chamber of Commerce's Public Policy Council conducted a thorough review of candidates to include a written questionnaire and personal interview before sending the official recommendations to the Board of Directors for approval. Candidates were selected who have distinguished themselves as knowledgeable and supportive of issues positively affecting the business community in the City of Glendale.

The Glendale Chamber has issued the following endorsements:

Cholla District: Re-election of Vice-Mayor Lauren Tolmachoff

Barrel District: Re-election of Councilmember Bart Turner

Ocotillo District: Re-election of Councilmember Jamie Aldama

"The Glendale Chamber Board of Directors is pleased to endorse candidates who have demonstrated accessibility and collaboration in support of promoting interests most important to our local businesses," said Bill Toops, Chair of the Public Policy Council. "The Glendale Chamber continues to build strong relationships and looks forward to our continued partnership with the Mayor and City Council on issues which help our business community and our local economy prosper."

"The Glendale Chamber's Public Policy Council is pivotal to the mission of the Chamber as we look to support business friendly candidates," said Robert Heidt, Glendale Chamber President & CEO. "Throughout this process we heard from those running for office and have endorsed candidates who had the clearest understanding of the challenges facing the business community and those whose policies align with our initiatives to foster a pro-business environment focused on the creation of quality jobs, along with business retention and expansion."
